LEADING TRANSFORMATIONS AND TURNAROUNDS IN ACADEMIA

IN-HOUSE Courses can be designed in accordance with organizational requirements

INTRODUCTION

Academics are often ambivalent about assuming leadership roles. However, many find themselves "forced" into such positions (as heads of department, deputy deans or deans) since many institutions of higher learning today opted to rotate their academic administrators. Once appointed, they are expected to do extraordinary feats like deliver great results quickly, manage change, transform their departments or faculties into high performing organizations (HPOs) or turnaround underperforming academics entities. Yet most academic leaders are not trained to meet these expectations. The poor or mediocre outcome of their leadership is of course for everyone to see and 'suffer'. Although there is much talk about the importance of leadership development and succession planning, in reality, it never happens in many organizations. This course is designed to help current leaders in institutions of higher learning understand the change forces impacting higher education today, principles of change management, basic concepts in transformation and turnaround, key steps to be taken in such a process and the capabilities & competencies needed to deliver transformational and turnaround leadership.
